

Judge Primeaux's Better Chancery Practice Blog ranked among top 100

November 29, 2016

Editors of the ABA Journal announced today that they selected the Better Chancery Practice Blog, written by Chancellor Lawrence Primeaux of Meridian, as one of the nation's 100 best blogs for a legal audience.

"For 10 years, the Blawg 100 has helped shine a light on the stunning breadth of legal topics and voices to be found in the legal blogosphere," Acting Editor-Publisher Molly McDonough said. "Journal editors have selected yet another stellar list of blogs. We hope you'll find legal information sources in this list that are completely new to you and bookmark them for regular reading."

Judge Primeaux said, "The Better Chancery Practice Blog, which is more than six years old, is designed to help lawyers and judges who work in Mississippi's Chancery Courts. It is indeed quite an honor to be recognized in this way by the ABA Journal."

Judge Primeaux started the blog June 14, 2010. His original intent was to provide a tool for lawyers in the 12th Chancery District of Lauderdale and Clarke counties. The blog, published several times each week, is read statewide. The Better Chancery Practice Blog is at this link: <https://betterchancery.com>.

The ABA Journal is the flagship magazine of the American Bar Association, and it is read by half of the nation's 1.1 million lawyers every month. It covers the trends, people and finances of the legal profession.

With nearly 400,000 members, the American Bar Association is the largest voluntary professional membership organization in the world. As the national voice of the legal profession, the ABA works to improve the administration of justice, promotes programs that assist lawyers and judges in their work, accredits law schools, provides continuing legal education, and works to build public understanding around the world of the importance of the rule of law.
